You and I, on a silent platform
I scream your name, but you just turn away
Here, we have shared our days
Here, where I first saw your face

You were here before I settled down
You were here when noone was around
But now, the train keeps rolling on
And I see you fade away... don't cry

People come, and people take their leave
I thought that we, would always be a team
But time, it has changed my friend
This train will take me far away... don't cry

All we could see, was the white walls and a shining heal
You stole my rights, but still kept me alive

The bombs have stopped to fall, and silence fills your room
You were the last to stand but now you reached your doom
The train it is leaving now
And finally so am I
