

This very day

Sunlight falls upon the snow and tales arrive from long ago
Christmas time is at the door and it takes me of to a different shore

Where I was travelling all around, to see what I could find
'cause the rumours said a king was born upon this very day.

We where three who vent away and the shining star did lead the way

Noone knew what we would find but in a stable a king we found
But little did we understand what a man he would became
That he would change the way we live untill this very day

Sunlight now has fade away and so has this lovely day
Christmas time is at the door so merry christmas to you all
And I will make that trip once moore to the place so long ago
To celebrate the baby born upon that very day
