

The world's gone mad

The world's gone mad. I cannot put that thought away
And ain't it sad? It wount get better day by day
It's up and down. A sense of hoplesnes inside

The world's gone mad. A place that used to be so sweet.
And ain't it sad? It all keeps flouting out of reatch.
And all that's left. Is to drift into the wild.

What can I say? I can't express the way I feel
It's so unreal. But I must have a will of steal
'cause all ain't lost. There's things that keep me from the wild

*The sun that shines and cast it's shadow on the ground
To see the children play and hear them make their sound
This sends me happiness and gives me peace of mind
But still I feel I keep loose it all the time*

What can I say? My words are floating on the breeze
I can't pretend that you'll hear and that you're here
'cause you're not here, you have gone into the wild