

Muddy Waters

I came up from Mississippi, all the way up here
To see a different story, with my guitar in hand I left the fields of cotton picking, where many good man stayed 'till the end of life, sutch a lonely life.

I came crawling. I came crawling up from muddy waters.

Then I walked into Chicago, where the steel meets steel.
I met some people there to play with, and we spun the wheel I played some chess alone, then the band joined in and we cut some songs and the ball would roll We started crawling. We started crawling up from muddy waters

Then my Mojo started working, with the Hoochie coochie man And when I walked the streets one evening, I heard my songs played everywhere

And I heard the people screaming at the venues that we played as the light went dim, and the world got still

The people shouting, they where shouting out for Muddy Waters
